Key Takeaways

Fiji has at least two notable companies involved in fiber optic cable manufacturing and services: Dominion Wire & Cables Limited and Datec Fiji. Key Companies1. Dominion Wire & Cables Limited Dominion Cables, established in 1980, is Fiji's primary local manufacturer of cable solutions, including energy, communication, data, and industrial cables.

The company produces fiber optic cables according to international standards (AS/NZS and BS specifications) and exports to Australia, New Zealand, and other Pacific islands. Dominion Cables operates its own factory with advanced cable-making technology and testing labs, enabling full-scale production and project delivery for both local and regional markets. 2.

Datec Fiji PTE LT

D Datec Fiji specializes in fiber optic services, including design, installation, splicing, testing, and maintenance of fiber optic networks. While Datec primarily focuses on installation and network services, it also provides end-to-end solutions for businesses, government, healthcare, and industrial clients across Fiji and the South Pacific. Their operations include technical support and emergency repair services, making them a key player in the fiber optic ecosystem.

Market Context

The Fiji fiber optic cable market is projected to grow steadily, reflecting increasing demand for advanced telecommunications infrastructure in the region. While global leaders like China, India, and Japan dominate the Asia-Pacific fiber optic market, Fiji's local manufacturers play a crucial role in supplying and maintaining fiber optic networks for domestic and regional connectivity.

Summary

Currently, Dominion Wire & Cables Limited is the only confirmed local manufacturer of fiber optic cables in Fiji, while Datec Fiji provides comprehensive fiber optic services including installation and maintenance. There may be smaller or emerging companies, but publicly available information identifies these two as the primary contributors to Fiji's fiber optic cable industry.
