Key Takeaways

Lightweight cable trays typically range from $24 to $435 per section, depending on size, material, and style.

Price Overview

Wire Mesh / Basket Trays: Common lightweight options, often made of pre-galvanized or powder-coated steel. Prices range from $24 for small 4" x 2" x 5' trays to $434 for larger 6" x 18" x 10' sections suitable for industrial or data center use (Platt Electric Supply, Amazon, Zoro). Wire Mesh Trays for Data Centers: Multi-pack options, such as 10-pack 6" x 4" x 10' trays, are priced around $110–$160 per tray on Amazon, offering durability and flexibility for network cabling.

Ladder-

Style Cable Trays: Lightweight aluminum or steel ladder trays, often used for larger cable runs, range from $218 to $260 for 12' x 12" sections with varying load capacities (Zoro, Platt Electric Supply). Specialty or Stainless Steel Trays: Stainless steel or electro-zinc coated trays for corrosive environments can cost $155–$160 for 10' sections, providing extra durability and resistance to wear. Accessories and Fittings: Couplers, clamps, and elbows for lightweight trays are generally inexpensive, ranging from $1 to $30 per piece, depending on size and material.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Galvanized steel is cheaper than stainless steel or powder-coated finishes.
Dimensions: Wider and deeper trays cost more due to increased material usage.
Length: Standard sections are 5–10 feet; longer sections increase cost.

Load Capacity: Trays designed for heavier cables or industrial use are priced higher.
Supplier and Brand: Prices vary between distributors like Platt Electric Supply, Amazon, Zoro, and CableOrganizer.

Practical Tips

For home or office use, small wire mesh trays (4"–6" width, 5–10' length) are cost-effective and easy to install. For industrial or data center applications, consider multi-pack or ladder-style trays for higher load capacity and airflow. Always check for accessories like couplers and clamps, as these are essential for installation and add to total cost.

By comparing suppliers and selecting the appropriate size and material, you can find lightweight cable trays that fit both your budget and project requirements.
