Peru Overseas Warehouse Liquid-Cooled Switch 200G

Overview

Notably, the flagship 200G SFP56 liquid-cooled module, featuring PAM4 modulation with a single-channel speed of 56Gbps, supports transmission distances up to 10 km. It offers high-density and low-latency connectivity for AI training clusters. Extending HPE Juniper's innovation leadership from 800G to 1. 4 Tbps data center switch, featuring 64 x 1. 6 Tbps OSFP-RHS ports, compliance with the Open Compute ORV3 standard, and 100% liquid-cooling. The Peruvian market for Liquid Cooling Coolant Distribution Units (CDUs) is at a nascent but pivotal stage of development, characterized by targeted demand from high-performance computing and industrial applications. As of the 2026 analysis, the market is transitioning from a niche. This new product lineup includes key models such as the 10G SFP+, 25G SFP28, 100G QSFP28, 200G SFP56, 400G QSFP112, 400G OSFP, and 800G OSFP, representing a major advancement in high-performance, energy-efficient data center interconnects. This innovation is designed to help global clients tackle. Why get ready now?

Imagine a data center where even the most powerful switches run cool and stable—without noise, thermal throttling, or energy waste. Cisco is actively innovating in direct-to-chip liquid cooling for high-performance switches, laying the groundwork for solutions that will enable. At this year's GTC conference, NVIDIA introduced its latest GB300 AI chip and AI server. However, detailed information on the GB300 liquid-cooled switch has been scarce.
