Key Takeaways

Outdoor cabinet bases typically range from $300 to over $2,000 depending on size, material, and customization.

General Pricing Overview

Outdoor base cabinets vary widely in price based on material, size, and brand. Standard cabinets made from weather-resistant materials like stainless steel or All-Weatherboard® typically start around $300–$500 for smaller units, while larger or custom configurations can exceed $1,500–$2,000. Cabinets designed to integrate with sinks, grills, or trash storage may cost more due to additional features and specialized construction.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Stainless steel and fade-resistant composite materials are more expensive but offer long-term durability against sun, rain, and humidity. Size and Configuration: Widths range from 9” to 48”, with depths around 24–28” and standard heights of 30” plus adjustable legs. Multi-drawer, sink, or trash cabinets are priced higher due to added functionality.

Customization: Custom-fit cabinets for side burners, integrated appliances, or unique layouts increase cost. Optional finished side panels and decorative legs also add to the price. Brand: Premium brands like WeatherStrong® and Trex Outdoor Kitchens offer higher-end finishes and warranties, which can increase the price compared to standard retail options.

Where to Buy

Amazon: Offers a range of outdoor base cabinets, including small business and eco-friendly options, with prices varying by size and material. Etsy: Provides unique or custom handmade cabinets, which may be priced higher due to craftsmanship and customization. Specialty Brands: WeatherStrong® and Trex Outdoor Kitchens provide durable, weatherproof cabinets designed for full outdoor kitchen setups, with pricing reflecting premium materials and features.

In summary, expect to pay $300–$500 for basic small cabinets, $800–$1,500 for mid-range units, and $1,500–$2,500 or more for large, custom, or premium outdoor base cabinets. Prices vary significantly depending on material, size, and additional features, so it is recommended to compare options from multiple suppliers before purchasing.
