Overview

Learn about the regulations for importing various goods into Switzerland, including VAT and customs duties. Use the QuickZoll app to effortlessly clear your goods before crossing the border.

Key Takeaways

Importing a 200G optical/electro-mechanical hybrid cable into Switzerland is subject to VAT (7. 7%), applicable customs duties based on the product category, and potential customs clearance fees.

Customs Duties and VAT

When importing goods into Switzerland, the customs duty depends on the product classification under the Swiss tariff system. Electronic and optical cables typically fall under HS codes for electrical machinery and fiber optic components, which may have low or zero duty rates, but this must be confirmed with Swiss Customs for the exact HS code of your cable. In addition to customs duty, Swiss VAT of 7.

7% is applied to the CIF value of the shipment, which includes the cost of the goods, shipping, and insurance. For example, if the cable costs CHF 5,000 and shipping plus insurance is CHF 200, the VAT is calculated on CHF 5,200, resulting in CHF 400. 40 VAT.

Additional Fees

Customs clearance fee: If using a courier or postal service, a brokerage or handling fee may be charged for processing the import declaration. Minimum consignment fee: For private imports under CHF 1,000 and 10 kg, a flat fee of CHF 29 may apply. Special considerations: If the cable contains materials classified as critical (e.g., precious metals or restricted substances), additional documentation or fees may apply.

Practical Steps

Classify the product: Determine the correct HS code for the hybrid cable.

Calculate CI

F value: Include product cost, shipping, and insurance. Estimate duties and VAT: Use the Swiss import duty calculator or consult customs authorities. Submit declaration: Use the QuickZoll app for electronic customs clearance to simplify the process.

Pay fees: Pay VAT, customs duty, and any brokerage fees before or upon delivery.

Summary

For a 200G optical/electro-mechanical hybrid cable, expect low to moderate customs duty, 7. 7% VAT on the total CIF value, and possible handling fees.

Using the Quick

Zoll app or consulting a customs broker can help avoid delays and unexpected costs. Always verify the HS code and any material-specific restrictions to ensure compliance with Swiss import regulations.
