What to do about fiber optic cable splicing and termination in the computer room

Overview

In this guide, we'll walk you through the entire process of preparing fiber optic cable for splicing and termination to fiber connectors. What is Fiber Optic Splicing and Why is it Needed?

– #1. Use and Maintain Your. We terminate fiber optic cable two ways - with connectors that can mate two fibers to create a temporary joint and/or connect the fiber to a piece of network gear or with splices which create a permanent joint between the two fibers. For network managers and technicians, a poor splice can lead to significant signal degradation, network downtime, and costly troubleshooting. A well-implemented splicing and termination. Proper fiber optic termination is a crucial process for ensuring the reliability, performance, and long-term durability of any fiber optic network.
